

MEET AMANDA

“Families in transition face a variety of challenges. During these difficult times, I strive to educate, empower, and guide my clients through every step of the legal process to ensure that their diverse needs are met and their desired goals are achieved.”

— Amanda C. Frett

Amanda concentrates her practice in all aspects of family law including divorce, adoption, child and spousal support, custody, separation and domestic abuse in the greater Doylestown, PA area. Amanda advises people during some of the most challenging times of their lives. Her goal is to help move clients away from the discord in their present dynamic and toward cultivating and living a better future.

Amanda believes in honest and clear communication. She is constantly interacting with her clients, both listening and advising, to ensure they feel educated, empowered, and confident in their decisions. She strives to provide her clients with an overview of the legal process, and clearly inform them of their rights and options so that they can make the best decisions for themselves and their families. Amanda’s training in Collaborative Law and undergraduate degree in Psychology are some of the foundations for her unique ability to empathize with her clients and then zealously advocate in their case.

In her spare time, Amanda and her husband enjoy watching movies, going to local festivals and events, as well as comedy shows. Growing up in Bucks County and Montgomery County, respectively, they now enjoy taking their very energetic boy/girl twins to activities and places they enjoyed as children.
